

The aspect evaluated	The evaluation	Commentary
Does the manuscript fit the goals, priorities, and thematic orientation of Deeds and Days ?
Is the manuscript in any way new, original, or conceptual?
Do (does) the manuscript's author(s) refer to the most important and newest scholarly sources, do they or does (s)he participate in scholarly discussions of this topic, and what is the extent and adequacy of the field of references for this topic?
What is the manuscript's value and relevance to the academic community and its possible effect on a broader audience?
What is the methodological justification for, and adequacy of, the research carried out, if any?

Does the manuscript satisfy requirements in terms of content and structure that a scholarly work must meet? Are its arguments in support of its claims suitable? Is its academic language clear and comprehensible?
Possibility of publication	The manuscript may be published without any changes. The manuscript may be published with minor changes (an additional review is unnecessary). The manuscript may be published only after major changes have been made (an additional review is necessary). The manuscript is not publishable.	